What we do

mergeflow.stream mergeflow.stream is a web application for exploring the content of information streams (e.g. news, publications, blogs, Twitter, etc.).

mergeflow.stream can be accessed via any modern browser and via mobile clients (e.g. smartphones or tablets).

Applications for mergeflow.stream include research and analysis in investment banking, technology radar, and open source intelligence (OSINT).

mergeflow.enterprise refers to customized solutions for intelligence analysis and research:

- infrastructure solutions that enable organizations to explore information collaboratively
- solutions that enable the exploration of internal information streams (e.g. intranet or SharePoint).

mergeflow.research

We analyze topics for our customers in the internet (e.g. blogs, forums, news), as well as in static collections of information. For our analyses we use our software, which enables us to address questions that are beyond the reach of simple monitoring or search.

Our customers typically work in product development, marketing, or consulting.
